Allegiance Earns Microsoft Independent Software Vendor Status, Gold Partner Certification

(Fargo, ND - 6/01/09)

Allegiance has earned Gold Certified Partner certification from Microsoft, the most advanced designation in the corporation's Partner Program. This designation represents the highest level of competence and expertise with Microsoft technologies as well our Allegiance's strong commitment to provide exceptional service and software.

With this designation Allegiance customers and staff receive greater access to software functionality and training.

The training and technical support are especially beneficial, says Sonja Jensen, Allegiance's chief software architect, because challenges clients face often are related to how Allegiance software interfaces with the Microsoft operating system or software rather than the Allegiance software itself.

"This designation is a recognition of the quality, security and dependability of our software," she said. "More importantly, it allows us to expand our service and offerings for our clients."
